Craig Jonathan Hansen

To Whom It May Concern:

I came to Mr. Hansen (he goes by Jon) when I filed for divorce from my wife. We had a really nasty divorce: she fought me over custody of our son, when I took him away from her. The main argument was over custody, though she fought over everything - even things that didn't make any sense. It was very painful; she made a lot of claims that were complete lies, and we went through a lot of pain to prove them.

My wife went through two attorneys, and the case took over a year. Jon's advice was always right on. Looking back on it, he was smart in knowing when to fight, and when not to fight about things. Our strategy in the case worked, though we had to take it all the way through trial. In the end, we won almost everything.

The judge - Judge Hubbard, in Kent - took part of my wife's visitation away and also ordered her to pay almost $20,000 of my attorney fees. I'll never see it, but it was nice to win it.

Jon was always there. I think he must work 7 days a week. The case really worked out well: I have custody, and my ex-wife now only has every other weekend, Friday evening to Saturday evening. Jon's fees are average, and I feel today, it was worth it. I have my son now, and feel Jon did a thorough job, as I never heard the judge say, or imply anything other than a good job. I even heard a judge say he was an experienced attorney, and that gave me confidence.

I would strongly recommend him to anyone who needs a sharp, fast-moving attorney. I will probably in the future ask advice from him because I feel confident in his ability and experience.

Sincerely,

James Hall
